Microbiology: pre-submission checklist

For the full pre-submission checklist required for all journals, please view our Information for Authors.
Please also refer to the journal's About page prior to submission.

New Submissions

- Please declare if the manuscript contains microarray or other genome based data on the online submission form.
- A source (name and brief address) or reference should be given for each strain used. Authors are encouraged to deposit important strains in a recognized culture collection and to refer to the collection and strain number in the paper.